

Training for Health

THE PROBLEM | Waste collecting and municipal urban cleaning exposes workers to a variety of risk factors which make them susceptible to certain occupational diseases. MUCs are considered front line employees or municipalities covering basic needs, also in times of public health threats, such as the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. THE SOLUTION | We, the consortium partners, aim to develop high quality occupational health and safety skills and competences among MUCs. OUR IMPACT | Our occupational health curriculum aims to improve the quality of life of MUCs, as they will feel empowered to protect themselves from the risks of the job.
